Skinny Girls Don't Have OOMPH!

It takes those extra lbs. of solid flesh to "bring out" your natural curves

If you're otherwise healthy but skinny, scrawny, rundown and lbs. underweight, try correcting this common mistake in eating.

THERE are three essential substances that many thin, scrawny and undernourished girls may fail to get in sufficient quantity from the food they eat. These substances are Vitamin B_1, calcium phosphate and iron. If, like thousands of others, you are underweight without organic cause . . . never seem to gain a pound . . . are so thin that you look gangling and gawky from insufficient amounts of these precious elements, don't get discouraged.

You may find that by correcting this simple mistake in eating you can easily add firm solid flesh . . . extra alluring pounds that help bring out those natural eye-catching curves. A simple and easy way is to try the amazing new product called Numal that supplies, in significant amounts, the Vitamin B_1, calcium phosphate and iron needed in the daily diet. Plus a food that in itself is a great help in adding extra pounds.

Take 1 heaping teaspoonful of Numal 3 times a day. It is pleasant, assimilable and easy to take. You will get the equivalent in Vitamin B_1 content of 34 cakes of average moist baker's yeast . . . the iron equivalent of 15 pounds of tomatoes or 1⅓ pounds of spinach or 9 pounds of boiled beets...and the calcium equivalent of ¼ths pint of fresh cow's milk, the phosphorus content of 1 glass.

Remember, if you don't get a sufficient quantity of Vitamin B_1 in your daily diet, you may suffer loss of appetite. And without sufficient iron, the element that helps build rich red blood, you may be rundown, pale, weak and listless. You need calcium phosphate for sound teeth and sturdy bones.

SKINNY MEN ARE NOT ATTRACTIVE EITHER

. . . a skinny, scrawny body is no asset in social or business life. Give NUMAL a chance to build you up, put firm flesh on you.

Numal Must Please You or No Cost

So if you are skinny, gangling and bony from lack of these precious nutrients, don't wait any longer. Get Numal today. You will want those extra pounds that "bring out" your natural eye-catching curves. Take Numal faithfully for a week. See if you can't actually feel the difference . . . gain weight and better color. If after this short period you honestly don't feel Numal has benefited you, just return the bottle for a complete refund of your money. Numal costs but a few cents a day to use.

If loss of weight persists see your doctor

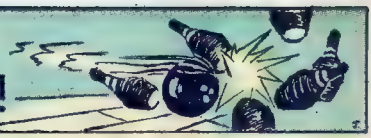
NO STRIKES— YOU'RE OUT!



PENNY scurried happily along the school corridor. Another day of classes over—another wonderful "at-home" date with Ralph tonight. He was going to bring over his new bop album, they'd probably dance to some of Penny's records, and then they'd settle down in the kitchen for some hot chocolate and cookies.

"Penny!" a female voice broke into Penny's dreams. "Come see!" Penny's mind snapped back to the present, and she saw her best friend, Doris, beckoning to her from a group of students gathered in front of the bulletin board near the school's main entrance.

"Look! Isn't it exciting?" Doris babbled as Penny approached the group. "Something new for a change—instead of the same old football and basketball and baseball games!"

Penny smiled vaguely at Doris. What was the girl raving about? Then she looked up at the big colorful poster on the bulletin board. Her eyes grew wide, and her mouth fell open. Then, gradually, an expression of complete dismay crept over her features.

No, it just couldn't be! Not now—now of all times! Just when she'd finally met her dream man! But there it was—in red, white and blue. The picture on the poster showed a boy and a girl in perfect bowling stance ready to throw their balls down a bowling alley. "Join up!" the poster read. "Silvertown High Doubles Bowling Contest! The two winners become co-presidents of a new bowling club!"

Penny heaved a great sigh, then put a restraining hand on Doris' arm. Doris turned to her, and slowly her excited exclamations trailed off into thin air. "What's the matter with you?" she asked Penny. "You look as if you'd just seen a ghost!"

"I have," Penny muttered. "The ghost of all my troubles." Doris looked startled, and Penny turned toward the door. "Come on," she flung over her shoulder. "Let's go home."

Out on the street Doris peered worriedly at her pal. "Really, Penny," she said sympathetically, "Don't you feel well? It isn't like you not to get enthused over something new. Maybe you ought to see a doctor."

"No doctor could help me," Penny groaned. "It's heart trouble, but not that kind."

"Oh," Doris nodded understandingly, "a rival." Still she was a little puzzled. Everyone knew Ralph hadn't seen another girl since he'd met Penny.

"No," Penny said abruptly, "it isn't a rival." Another dismaying thought burst in her mind, and she added, "Not yet anyhow."

"Then what else could possibly be wrong?" Doris asked impatiently.

Suddenly Penny blurted out her whole problem. "Maybe I never told you," she began, "but Ralph's favorite sport is bowling, which means that this contest will be right up his alley. And you know I've never bowled in my life. And so how could I keep Ralph from teaming up with somebody else? Somebody like—like Sherry Madden!"

Doris gasped. It wasn't like Penny to be worried this way. And Sherry Madden—that was a problem. Sherry was the best girl bowler in the high school crowd, and besides that she was the glamour girl of Silvertown. Doris counted to ten and made herself think logically.

"Look," she said calmly, "one thing at a time. Ralph wouldn't ask Sherry to team up with him without talking to you about in first, would he?"

"I don't know," Penny replied in a small voice. "He might. He's mentioned what a wonderful bowler she is more than once."

"All right," Doris hurried on, "but he wouldn't ask her if he thought you could bowl, would he?"

"You know I don't bowl," Penny said hopelessly.

"You can learn, can't you?" Doris returned. "The contest's two weeks away, and all you have to do is tell Ralph you'd like to be in it with him, but you haven't bowled in quite a while and you need brushing up. Then he'll teach you, and everything will be O. K."

"I don't know," Penny said thoughtfully. "I've never been any too good at sports."

"Why, bowling is simple," Doris waved Penny's objections aside. "Even I can bowl!"

That evening everything went far better than Penny had expected it would. She didn't even have to tell Ralph that she wanted to enter the contest with him—he asked her! He seemed to have assumed it was a matter of course that they'd be in it together even if Penny weren't an expert bowler. In fact, Penny had only one moment of uneasiness during the whole contest discussion.

Right in the middle of a sentence, Ralph interrupted himself with, "You do bowl, don't you, Penny?" Then, as sort of afterthought, "I've been so excited about this contest and I've talked so much about my own bowling that I didn't even think to ask you."

Penny was about to give the answer Doris had suggested when Ralph continued, "But, of course, you must bowl. Otherwise you wouldn't have been able to listen to me rave on about it so." He smiled fondly at Penny, and a relieved Penny smiled back. Ralph had taken care of that point at least.

"I do have to brush up a bit," Penny said innocently. "Do you suppose we could practice every day until the contest?"

Ralph agreed, and that was that. The only time he mentioned Sherry all evening was to say she'd probably be the person they'd have to beat. Everything went so easily that Penny began to wonder whether she hadn't been a little too hasty with her decision. If Ralph were as unconscious of Sherry as he seemed to be, maybe Penny was just getting into deep water. Now she felt she had to make a good showing—or lose Ralph.

Two weeks later Penny knew she'd gotten into deep water. Bowling might be simple for Ralph and Sherry and even Doris, but as far as Penny was concerned, it was the most impossible sport she'd ever tried. Sometimes she'd slip part way down the alley with her fingers caught in the ball. Or, instead of aiming the ball, she'd drop it so that it would bounce feebly a few times and then roll into the gutter. Her muscles were sore. And she'd never gotten a score above 60—out of a possible 300!

The contest day finally arrived. Surprisingly enough she and Ralph managed to win out over enough other teams to make the finals. She was so tired and dazed that she was certain she'd forgotten anything she might have learned. And, worst of all, she and Ralph were to play against Sherry and Bill Adams. While Bill wasn't as good a player as Sherry or Ralph, Penny knew, he could easily tally up a higher score than she. Ralph was worried, too; Penny could tell by the way he was obviously trying to be patient in explaining the fundamentals to her for the umpteenth time.

By the last frame the others were 21 pins ahead—and Penny was to be the last one to play. Luckily Bill had played a comparatively poor game, with Sherry carrying most of the load for their team, and Ralph had made an exceptional showing. But unless Penny came through, Sherry would win the tournament and, perhaps, Ralph.

But when she began to bowl, she forgot everything. She only knew she was doing the whole thing wrong. She walked back too far from the foul line, then broke into a run that was much too energetic. Finally she caught herself back so abruptly just before the foul line that she slipped—and fell flat on her face! The ball dropped from her hand and rolled slowly down the alley.

"Strike! Strike!" Penny heard the crowd yelling in the background, but she was only conscious of Ralph's concerned face bent over her. "Are you hurt, Penny?" he asked worriedly.

Suddenly everything was all right. "I'm fine," Penny smiled back. "Maybe we can win after all." She scrambled quickly to her feet. She'd been such a silly girl. She'd been so worried about losing Ralph that she hadn't been able to concentrate on her game. And now, instead of being excited because she'd gotten a strike and had a chance of winning, Ralph was more concerned about whether she was hurt!

Penny felt confident as she shot her last ball down the alley. Six pins fell, and the championship was Ralph's and hers—by one pin!

Sherry came over to congratulate them, but, Penny noticed, Ralph didn't even see her. His eyes were glued on Penny—and there was more than admiration in them.

"Guess a person's thoughts can get rusty sometimes, too," Penny said on the way home.

"Sometimes," Ralph smiled. "But as long as a person learns before it's too late, everything's O.K." And Penny knew he wasn't talking about bowling!
